The story of Hope For The Warriors and Service Animals for Warriors is a heartwarming tale of love, hope, and the power of a single life. It's a story that will make you believe in miracles, and it all started with one small dog.

In 2006, Hope For The Warriors was founded by Robin Kelleher, a military spouse who was inspired to help wounded service members after her husband was injured in Iraq. One of the ways that Hope For The Warriors helps service members is by providing them with service animals. Service animals can help veterans with a variety of tasks, from providing emotional support to helping with mobility. They can also help veterans overcome the challenges of post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD), traumatic brain injury (TBI), and other invisible wounds of war.

In 2011, Hope For The Warriors partnered with Service Animals for Warriors, a non-profit organization that trains and places service animals with veterans. Service Animals for Warriors has placed over 1,000 service animals with veterans since its founding in 2006. One of the most popular breeds of service dogs is the Golden Retriever, and one of the most successful Golden Retrievers in the program is a dog named Hawkeye.

Hawkeye was born in 2010, and he was immediately identified as a special dog. He was incredibly intelligent and eager to please, and he had a natural ability to connect with people. Hawkeye was placed with a veteran named Jason, who was suffering from PTSD and TBI. Jason had been struggling to cope with his injuries, but Hawkeye quickly became his constant companion and source of support.

Hawkeye helped Jason in many ways. He would wake Jason up from nightmares, and he would provide him with emotional support during difficult times. Hawkeye also helped Jason to socialize and to get out of the house. Together, Jason and Hawkeye became a team, and they helped each other to heal.

Hawkeye's story is just one example of the amazing work that Hope For The Warriors and Service Animals for Warriors are doing. These organizations are making a real difference in the lives of veterans, and they are saving lives. If you are looking for a way to help veterans, please consider donating to Hope For The Warriors or Service Animals for Warriors.

Here are some ways that you can help:

- Donate to Hope For The Warriors or Service Animals for Warriors.

- Volunteer your time to help with fundraising or other events.
