About the Trilogy

Song of the River, Cry of the Wind, and Call Down the Stars is a sweeping epic fantasy trilogy that follows the lives of three young women from different walks of life as they navigate a world on the brink of war. Set against a backdrop of ancient prophecies and forgotten legends, the trilogy explores themes of love, loss, and redemption.

The first novel in the trilogy, Song of the River, introduces us to Anya, a young woman who is destined to become the next Water Singer. Water Singers are powerful healers who use their voices to control water, and Anya must learn to master her abilities in order to save her people from a devastating drought.

The second novel in the trilogy, Cry of the Wind, follows the story of Liana, a young woman who is caught between two worlds. She is the daughter of a human father and an elf mother, and she must choose between loyalty to her human kingdom or to her elven heritage.

The third and final novel in the trilogy, Call Down the Stars, brings the stories of Anya and Liana together as they must unite to save the world from an ancient evil. With the help of a young man named Ethan, who is the prophesied Starcaller, they must confront the darkness that threatens to consume everything.
